The user clicks on save and/or after a predetermined duration of time (5 or 30 minutes if there is a difference in the theme), the history dropdown changes text from "my-design.1.0" to "my-design.1.1" (or something similar) Indicating the selected state of the theme.
The undo and redo buttons get enabled

When the user clicks on the dropdown the user will see the list of states saved. The user then selects the state the theme from that state is loaded.

When the user clicks on undo, the state goes back to the previous one in the history

If the user changes something going back to the old state, all the states after that will be removed and the redo button disables since the history changed
